National treasure, Inuyama Castle

Inuyama Castle Town

Historical structures can still be seen along the street that developed together with building Inuyama Castle. Coffee shops and restaurants making use of machiya (traditional wooden townhouses) are popular.

Inuyama Castle is famous for the oldest extant wooden tower (tenshu) in Japan. Here in the designated national treasure, you can learn the depth of history.

Sanko Inari Shrine

The pink heart-shaped wooden votive plaques are popular with female tourists!

Magomejuku post town

Nakasendo was one of the five major highways in the Edo Period. You can enjoy a leisurely stroll around Magomejuku, a typical post town on the highway. The scenery of gentle stone-paved hill roads with townhouses on both sides gives you a nostalgic feeling of the good old days in Japan. Attractions include [Masugata], [the water mill], [nightlights] and [the temple hall with an enshrined image of the celestial buddha, Amida].

Enjoy buckwheat noodles made of carefully selected buckwheat flour in Magomekan post town. You can also enjoy shopping souvenirs.

Local cuisine Buckwheat noodles and Gohemochi (skewered sweet rice cakes)
